"Microservices are a set of containers that work together to compose an application. Essentially, each microservice is an independent building block used for building an application, including the communications and authentication. Decisioning Framework | Foundation

Decisioning Framework | Foundation

You have to understand where you in order to get where you are going. Data collection is the most important step in the process.

Understanding your "cost to own" is crucially important. There are expenses to leave and expenses to convert. Understanding price is more than just your monthly run rate.
